CHARGES VOTES STOLEN

Upton Sinclair, defeated candidate or Governor of California, charges wholesale stealing of votes. "We congratulate you on your brief victory and are preparing for the next campaign," he told the victor, Frank Merriam.

The human flea is reported for the first time in the province of Quebec. The only other records of this species in Canada, says the Entomological Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, are from isolated localities in Prince Edward Island, Saskatchewan, and in British Columbia.

ROOSEVELT GETS HUGE MAJORITY -- SETS A RECORD

U.S. President's "New Deal" Given Stamp of Approval On Friday

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—For the first time since the Republican party was organized just before the United States civil war, the Democrats today obtained more than a two-third majority in the Senate.

Franklin D. Roosevelt today held the greatest mandate ever given a president of the United States.

The country gave him the signal to go ahead with his ramified new deal by sweeping Democrats into federal and state offices in unprecedented numbers in yesterday's election. Far from losing ground as is usual in off-year balloting the jubilant Democrats invaded such Republican fortresses as Pennsylvania and also seemed assured of commanding a two-thirds majority in the House of Representatives.

In addition, Joseph P. Guffey, Democratic candidate from Pennsylvania against the Republican stalwart, David A. Reed, gained a lead of more than 100,000. Reed conceded Guffey's victory.

Only four Republicans had been definitely elected in the Democratic landslide. They were in California, Delaware, Vermont and Michigan. Maine elected a Republican in September. That gives the G.O.P. 23 Senate seats. In California Acting-Governor Merriam defeated Upton Sinclair.

Merriam's lead over Upton Sinclair increased to 183,089 with the reports from 8,118 precincts of 10,721 in the state. The vote was Merriam 819,502; Sinclair 636,412; Raymond High (Commonwealth) 201,063.

Twenty-three Democratic senators were chosen, eight of them capturing Republican seats. Republicans, that fell before the onslaught were in Connecticut, Indiana, Ohio, Rhode Island and West Virginia.

Progressive Victorious
 Both Robert M. La Follette, Progressive candidate for re-election to the Senate, and his brother, Phil, running on the same ticket for governor, were victorious.

In the contests for representatives the Democrats this morning had elected 263 and the Republicans 85.

West Virginia and Florida voted for prohibition repeal by big majorities while Kansas voted to retain her dry law. Republicans led in Idaho, Nebraska South Dakota and Wyoming.

But now Mr. Roosevelt has a two-thirds majority in both houses he has also to handle a huge and strongly diverse crew of Democrats, ranging in color all the way from scarlet to dark blue.

Today the United States asked itself: What is Mr. Roosevelt going to do now that he has the country in the hollow of his hand.

It seemed Republicanism as a party would emerge from the landslide with less strength than ever before in history.

Republicans in West Virginia, Missouri, Ohio, Rhode Island, Connecticut and Indiana gave up six Senate seats to the Democrats. A half dozen seats also went to swell the already large Roosevelt quota in the House of Representatives.

An approximation of the total popular vote showed Democrats 10,225,745; Republicans 7,647,400.

Modern Trend of Rural School

Address Delivered Before School Trustees by Inspector L. A. Thurber

(From the Hanna Herald)
 Mr. chairman, ladies and gentlemen, you will note from the program that I am supposed to speak on the subject of the Modern Trend of the Rural School.

When I came to consider the subject I was somewhat at a loss as to what I should say to you. There appears to be little indication of any definite trend along this line for the past decade. Rather it appears that our Rural schools are drifting in the doldrums of apathy. We have had no new life added to our curriculum on modern lines the same our teachers vary but little except as to name. About the only noticeable change is that the old school house gets a little drabber, a little shabbier each year. We do not brighten it up because we can not finance the much needed repairs.

A casual inspection of the situation is not very encouraging. It seems almost as if our rural school problem was beyond any help, that we are doomed to go on with a system that is outmoded, a system that is without vigor or vision. Are you people satisfied that your children are getting the most out of the time that they spend in the classroom? If not it is the teacher at fault, is it the fault of the curriculum, or is it the fault of the ideas of what should constitute a program of studies for the rural school? I have said that the outlook is black, but I also think that it is the darkness before dawn. I sincerely think that out of the present state of financial stringency and apparently aimless drifting of rural education there is soon going to arise a much more satisfactory system. Indeed the signs are not lacking that this movement is already making itself apparent. I will mention some of these signs presently.

Let us consider the general form that an educational system should take. Any form of education to be effective, must reflect the daily life and interests of the community which it seeks to serve. Ask yourself to what extent our present system of rural education meets this test. Agriculture is the basic industry with us; consequently our rural education should be based on that fact. The school must have a program of study, making it more practical and more cultural. (1) Good scientific farming, rendering a fair return for labor and capital employed; and (2) a rural social life that more fully satisfies the people.

Before the rural school can take its place as a vital agency in the life of the community several important changes must be brought about. I will mention those that I consider to be the chief ones (1) The reorganization of the schools on a business basis with provision for maintenance. (2) The reorganization of the entire rural school course of study, making it more practical and more cultural. (3) The establishment of a training school for the specific purpose of turning out teachers solely for rural work.

I am not going to say anything at this time about the larger units because I feel that you all are familiar with the arguments for and against this matter as we discussed this last year. It is, however, well to emphasize at this time the matter of adequate provision for maintenance and operation. I need not say anything to you people about the difficulty of operating schools. You all know what we have been up against for the past several years in this respect. What I wish you to consider now is the matter of finding a solution for school financing so that in future we can at least be sure that the essential operation of our schools will not be jeopardized. I think that it is nothing short of a disgrace when the operation of our schools is even questioned because of lack of finance in this, or any other province. There is apparently money available to carry on other forms of service that are not nearly so essential as our schools. Why then is there difficulty in the matter of school finance. I am seriously suggesting to you that the only proper basis of taxation for school purposes is to make the province the taxing area. If this were done I feel sure that we would always be in a position to finance our schools.

It has been found that if the province were divided into three divisions the following rates for school purposes would obtain on the present assessment. From the boundary to Calgary the rate would be six mills; from Calgary to Edmonton it would be seven mills; the northern part of the province would be twelve mills. This would average about seven mills. Now there has never been a year in the history of the province that we would always be in a position to finance our schools.

grow where nothing grew before; who have improved grain, fruit and beast; who have proved by their deeds the best lesson of all—that the land is holy. And above all else there should be taught the dignity of honest labour; the satisfaction that comes from a good job well done. In the past there has been too much of the theory that if you get a good education you won't have to work. I think that you will readily see that there is a very real need for special training for the rural teacher.

In the discussion of the change that should be made in the course of studies I would like to ask you these questions. Do the rural schools teach what a modern agricultural population ought to know in order to get the greatest good out of life? Do the schools provide the kind of instruction required to keep the people in education? (Continued on page four)

The Better Way

A news item containing only a few lines appeared recently in one of Western Canada's daily papers. It was not featured in big type nor with display headings as are murders, accidents, strikes, meeting of protest over relief quotas, etc., but it nevertheless recorded an event of real importance to the community concerned which might well be accepted and acted upon by other communities all over the country.

In order to provide a measure of relief assistance to people in need of it, the local authorities decided that, instead of continuing with a policy of giving direct relief to the exclusion of any and all other forms of assistance, they would provide a measure of work, and the news item to which reference is now made recorded the results, which, briefly, were:

One hundred miles of rural telephone lines badly in need of repair were re-constructed, the old poles cut and re-set, ten rural systems were reduced to seven, the old wire and insulators thus saved were utilized to repair the lines on the seven systems, between 30 and 40 residents of the community were each given fifteen days work, and the only cash outlay for new materials was $4.25.

Several highly important things were thus accomplished. First and foremost these men instead of being placed deeper in debt, as they would have been if merely handed direct relief, were given remunerative work which enabled them to discharge some of their past indebtedness. Secondly, the rural telephone systems which serve their own community were re-established for the benefit of the people there, and these systems likewise were again placed in a position as feeders to the long distance Government system. Thirdly, all the money expended, except $4.25, went to the people of the district who most badly needed it, and no additional capital debt was placed on the rural telephone company, while the reduction of ten systems to seven should make for efficiency and less cost in operation.

It would appear to be gain to the people all round—in work provided, in past debts or taxes reduced, in restored and improved telephone service for the community, and the probability of larger future revenues to the Government long distance system. It was worthwhile, constructive work without the imposition of any additional burden of debt.

Attention is called to this incident for one reason, and one reason only, and that is to suggest to readers of this column, and in particular to those occupying some position of authority in their particular community, that they take a look around their own districts and see if there is not some kind of useful community work in which the poor people in need of assistance could be employed to their benefit and to the benefit of the community as a whole.

There are other rural telephone lines in Western Canada badly in need of repair and rehabilitation; there are local roads that call for improvement; there are school buildings that require attention and repairs; there are other things, large and small, that have been neglected because of lack of funds. Why not make a survey of the community, and then organize the people to attend to all such matters, giving them in need of assistance an opportunity to work off burdensome arrears of taxes or earn a few dollars, instead of relying solely upon the distribution of direct relief.

By the one method municipalities are placed in a stronger position financially because their tax arrangements are reduced; by the other both municipalities and its residents are placed deeper in debt. Furthermore, by the one method the community as a whole is bettered and improved and its services and institutions efficiently maintained, and the morale of its people strengthened; by the other neither the municipality nor its residents have anything to show for their added liabilities but the fact that they maintained their existence, leaving to the future the ultimate discharge of those liabilities.

What one community has done for its own advancement and the welfare of its people, many other communities can do, if they will. It requires thought, study, planning and organization, and a will to work. Meeting the absolute necessities of people through the distribution of direct relief is, no doubt, an easier way—for the time being. But sooner or later the burden must be carried, and the longer the grasping with it is deferred the larger, heavier, and more difficult the burden becomes. Why not tackle it now in a forward-looking, constructive way?

One method, it may be said, is to encourage a new hope and confidence, with one good example encouraging another, whereas the other method leads to deeper discouragement and a further loss of that self-reliance and determination to provide self-help which is essential to the maintenance and further progress of any people and of all communities.

Hearing Below Normal

Many People Are Slightly Deaf Without Realizing It

According to Dr. G. P. Crowden, well-known aurist, many people are more or less deaf without realizing it. They imagine they can hear as well as other people.

There are 2,500,000 people in Great Britain whose hearing is below normal, and about 40,000 who are totally deaf. Five years ago rejections of army recruits for "middle ear disease," were 41 per 1,000. Now the ratio is 50 per 1,000 and these same conditions head the list of causes of discharge within six months of enlistment. It is a serious fact that every man, woman and child of these two and a half millions is seriously handicapped in everyday life, employment or education by inability to hear perfectly.

Must Sell Butter By Net Weight

Inspectors Checking Up To See That Consumers Receive Full Weight

Recently inspectors of the Dairy and Cold Storage Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture have been making a closer check up of the weights of prints of butter in order to insure that the consumer is receiving full weight. This has disclosed that the legal requirements concerning the sale of butter are not being strictly observed by some vendors.

These regulations provide in Sub-section 3 (a) of Section 6 of Part I. of The Dairy Industry Act that any butter intended for sale that has been moulded or cut into prints, blocks, squares or pats must be:

"of the full net weight of one-quarter pound, one-half pound, one pound or two pounds, but nothing in this paragraph shall be held to apply to butter in rolls or lumps, of indiscriminate weight, as sold by farmers."

The inspectors will continue the check up throughout Canada in order to see that consumers receive full net weight.

THE TENDERFOOT

By GEORGE B. RODNEY
Author of "The Coronado Trail", "The Canyon Trail", Etc.

SYNOPSIS

"You've fallen heir to a half-share in plenty of trouble," the lawyer told Gerald Keene. "The Broken Spur has been systematically looting the ranch, and old Joe Carr, your partner, is drinking himself into ruin."

But Keene decided to go see what was happening for himself—not as Gerald Keene, half owner of the Broken Spur ranch, but as Duro Stone, tenderfoot in a Montgomery Ward whitewash outfit.

Dad Kane, desert rat and luckless prospector, is now returning to tell Dustin and Spike Goddard, owners of the Broken Spur ranch who had grubstaked him, of his discovery of a rich gold mine, and shows samples of the ore. He sees Broken Spur men rustling Hour-glass cattle and protects against it.

Spike Goddard and Sam Dustin, fearing the old prospector may tell others the things he has seen as to the branding of Carr's cattle, plot to get him to show them the location of the mine and then to kill him.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER IV.—Continued

Kane nodded. His conscience was by no means clear. He knew that he had spoken unguardedly and he remembered how interested Raynor had been.

"Of course Spike and I are going to stake you," said Dustin. "But we've got to know more than we know now. A big mine'll cost money. We've got to be able to show the goods to capital. See? When can you take me up there to see the place?"

Kane eyed him but Dustin's face was impassive. After all his demand was only reasonable. No one could expect men to "buy a pig in a poke." He nodded quietly.

"Give me a couple o' days," he said. "Then I'll hike back up there and take you with me. I'll show it to you. Just you and me, hey?"

"That's all. We'll take a pack-pony for grub. I've got some business 'tend to before I go."

He stopped Spike Goddard midway between the house and the corral and told him his plan.

"You mean you're going out into the hills with that old rat by yourself? No one else? Then he don't come back? That's taking a most God's awful chance," said Spike who knew. But Dustin frowned him down.

"I mean that I'm going out into the hills with old Dad Kane to look into a prospect with him. I want Peyot Gregg to go with us. If any accident should happen to Kane, it will not be my fault, will it? I'll be leavin' with him on Monday. In the meantime, Spike, I've got some of old Joe Carr's paper. He borrowed twelve thousand from old Pegram on a note and the old Shylack was damned eager to sell it to me. We're sure as good as got old Joe Carr's half of the Hour-glass sawed up."

"Yea? Well, Gerald Keene owns the other half, don't he?"

"We'll cross that bridge when we come to it. You tell Peyot Gregg to take up a couple o' packs and to be ready to hit the trail first sign o' light Monday mornin'." See?

Spike glanced at him pityingly.

"Old man Kane's as crazy as a hawk," he said. "All prospectors are crazy. Peyot Gregg ain't got brains enough to fill a water-bag. An' you're going off into the hills with a string o' jackasses an' two crazy men. I'm glad I ain't goin' in Kane's place."

Dustin looked long at him and turned away.

"In that case you're sure playin' in luck," he said.

Why at 40 You Think You're "GROWING OLD"

It's Frequently Just an "Idea." Not "Old Age." And According to Scientists, May Be Something No More Alarming Than A Touch Of Acid Stomach.

At about 40, many people think they're "growing old." They're tired a lot. Have headaches. Stomach upsets. Dizziness. Nausea.

Well, scientists say the cause, in a great many cases, is merely an acid condition of the stomach. The thing to do is simply to neutralize the excess stomach acidity.

When you have one of these acid stomach upsets, all you do is take Phillips' Milk of Magnesia after meals and before going to bed.

Try this. You'll feel like another person. Take either the familiar liquid "PHILLIPS", or the convenient new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets.

CHAPTER V.

The Hour-glass ranch basked in the red-hot sunlight and the four men playing cards in the strip of shade behind the bunk-house grunted approval of the game and of the hot wind that bristled the mesquite tops. Lee and Spears and Bains were playing Mississippi River poker with a pack of twenty cards while Fort, the fat old range cook, assisted with advice from the sidelines. At a sudden noise he rose erect and stared down the trail.

"My God, fellows," he said in an awed tone; "look at Montgomery Ward, will yuh."

They looked. For a brief moment they were stricken dumb. Then they laughed as a gray pony, hardly visible beneath its load of lily stoved equipment, turned in at the gate and moved slowly toward the corral. His ill-adjusted saddle made the pony seem to move sideways and the four continued to stare as the rider dismounted and moved stiffly toward them. No word came from the poker players as the man came up to them.

In non-committal silence they regarded him.

"Any chance for a job here?" he asked.

Silent Lee jerked a finger at the ranch-house.

"Old man Carr's in there," he said. "He does his own hiri'n' an' drin'. See him if you want a job."

"Thanks. . . ."

The man strode over to the house and up the wooden steps. They saw him knock at the door; they heard a bull voice shout "come in" and they saw the newcomer drop his hat at the doorknob before entering.

"Southern bred man," quoth Baines; "but, my God, fellows! Have we all got to sleep in the bunk-house with that?"

"Uh-huh! I reckon so. You know how hard up we are fer men. Old man Carr's hiri'n' anything that wears pants. Look at Lee. . . ."

Lee started as though stung and regarded him passionately.

"Here he comes back," said Spears. "Reckon he's hired?"

As the newcomer strode back to them they examined him more carefully.

Beautifully tooled boots adorned with silver-inlaid Mexican spurs covered his feet. Immaculate white gaiter pants covered his blue denim pants. . . . That was as it should be. . . . A blue silk shirt lay open at the neck where its gap was filled with a scarlet neckerchief. A four-inch alligator's skin belt carried a row of shining brass cartridges and an open holster, in which lay a heavy six-gun with a walnut handle. Lee noted three new notches filed across the wood and he grinned. Fort alone took one look at the man's face that was tanned to the color of a young peacan nut and looked puzzled. That face did not agree with the blatant newness of the equipment. The mouth was wide and mobile, the nose had just a touch of the aquiline; enough to give character to the face. No two men ever quite agreed about the eyes. They were certainly slate-gray with sparks of hazel light in them like cat's-eyes but there was, too, a sort of dancing, playing light that might be deceptive. He swept off a twenty-dollar Stetson and half-nodded.

"My name's Stone, gentlemen," he said quietly.

"Spell it with an S I reckon," said Baines who passed as the bunk-house wit.

"No, sir. . . ." The man's eyes lit a little and he half-grinned. "I've always spelled it with a U. . . . UB, you know! You-be-damned Stone. . . . Mr. Carr says I'm hired."

"All right, Mr. You-be-damned Stone. Pitch your war-bag in the bunk-house. You got another name?"

"Two of 'em. But I reckon Stone's enough. Outside they call me Duro. . . . That means, hard. I hear. Makes my name Hard Stone."

Started In Curious Way

British House Of Commons Burned Hundred Years Ago

A hundred years ago, on Oct. 16, 1834, the House of Commons was burned down. The great grand-father of the present Lord Bessborough, Governor-General of Canada, performed feats of valor at the fire. He was then M.P. for Nottingham.

He climbed on the roof to direct the hose. In spite of the smoke, heat, water, and molten lead flowing around him. He was begged to come down, but did so only two minutes before the whole of the roof collapsed.

The fire started in a curious fashion. Until 1837 it was the practice of the Treasury to issue warrants "tallies" as acknowledgements for loans to the government.

Tallies were made by splitting a strip of wood in two, one part being retained by the treasury and the other being issued to the lender, who returned it when he repaid his loan.

It was the custom to store discharged tallies in the cellars of the House of Commons, and it was among them that the fire broke out. Paper acknowledgements were substituted for tallies in 1827.—News of the World.

Trapped By "Want Ad"

Police of Springfield, Missouri, used a newspaper want ad, to trap a house prowler who had stolen an electric sewing machine. The ad read: "Will exchange model T Ford for an electric sewing machine." The prowler "fell" for the ad, and promptly showed up at the home of a city detective who placed him under arrest and recovered the sewing machine for its owner.

Father: Why won't you marry Charlie?

Daughter: I'll only marry a man who knows life and has learnt its sorrows.

I see—a widower.

TO SAVE FUEL

There are many methods by which fuel may be wasted or saved without changing the comfort of the household. To save fuel, see that the windows are tight. It may be necessary to pack the cracks between sashes with strips of paper or old stockings or heavy fabrics. Weather strip about the windows and doors is a great help in shutting out the cold.

If some rooms are not heated, see that the doors are closed well and that there is not a wide crack underneath through which drafts blow. You may make thresholds or tack a temporary strip of heavy goods along the bottom of the door or lay down a small piece of carpet or a sandbag to shut out the cold.

If the house is heated by a furnace, the radiator or register should be shut off at night when the windows are open. For fear the radiator may freeze do not close it entirely, and wrap it with a blanket or heavy folds of paper. In cold weather it saves heat to shut off less used rooms and to pack the radiator.

Fuel may be saved by hanging a heavy curtain across a hallway or over a door. Such a curtain at the foot of the stairs will keep the heat down in the living rooms where it is needed most. It is better to keep some of the rooms comfortably warm and cozy than to have the chill off the whole house.

On cold winter evenings the rooms may be kept more comfortable by pulling down the shades to cover the entire window. The shades act as insulators to keep out the cold. In very cold climates, storm doors and double windows are a great saving of fuel. It should always be possible, however, to get ventilation in the bedrooms at night, and it is healthier not to keep the house too warm; but to accustom oneself to a temperature of sixty-eight, or not over seventy degrees, depending on age and health.

If there is a replace, much heat may escape up the chimney. Be sure to close the damper when the fireplace is not in use. If there is no damper, make a wooden panel to fit the throat of the chimney and insert it in place when there is no fire on the hearth.

THE COMPANY MEAL

This is the season for close association indoors and for drawing closer the ties of kinship. It is the time for harvest festivals and home-coming feasts. The secret of serving easily the big meals for such occasions lies in preparation well in advance.

As far ahead as possible plan your menu; order your chickens, turkey or roast; and see that you have in the house for such occasions the dressings, stuffings, sweet meats, and desserts. Plum pudding, mince meat, fruit cakes and cookies, and salad dressings, not only may be a week or two in advance, but are a better for having a chance to "ripen".

See that your table linens are freshly laundered, that the silver is cleaned, and that the china and porcelains are washed and set in a part of the cupboard where they will be in easy reach. If you must buy or borrow extra equipment, attend to that before the rush comes.

The day before the dinner, prepare your food to cook; pare the vegetables and cover them with cold water or wrap them in a wet cloth; chill the cocktail glasses; dish the butter; put the rolls in pans or paper sacks to warm in the oven. Measure the oil, the berry sauce or gelatin dishes; open the cans of pickles and olives; crack the nuts; and assemble the vegetables for cooking.

Early in the morning of the big day, put your meat to cook; pare the vegetables and cover them with cold water or wrap them in a wet cloth; chill the cocktail glasses; dish the butter; put the rolls in pans or paper sacks to warm in the oven. Measure the oil, the berry sauce or gelatin dishes; open the cans of pickles and olives; crack the nuts; and assemble the vegetables for cooking.

Reserve the last hour for cooking the vegetables making the gravy and the coffee and putting the finishing touches on the meal.

Assign to others such last minute jobs as setting the chairs, pouring the water and setting the cocktail on the table. Above all, keep calm and happy and do not come to your own company meal flustered and cross.

The newest raincoat is transparent and very light weight, but still durable. It may be folded to fit into the suitcase.

The streamline in figures is calling for the slim, smooth figure, minus the bulges and curves of form and fullness of dress which hinder speed.

Velvet gloves are new. They may be black or brown. Long white gloves are used in the ballroom.

Folding closely on the panache hats, come peaked hats and high hats. Rustling skirts of taffeta and full skirts gathered at the waistline are going to add yardage to our dress materials. This is a season of idleness, and formality. Gowns may be stiff, pompous and consequential. Muffs are returning, with or without silk. Silk and wool are combined in the new frocks, wool frock with silk trimmings.

PLUM PUDDING

Any combination of dried fruits, or canned fruits from which the juice has been drained, may be used in your so-called "plum pudding". The easiest way is to prepare the fruit in advance and mix it with a half cup of flour all ready to be added last to the pudding batter.

The fruit might consist of one cup of seedless raisins; half a cup of currants; one-fourth cup each of thinly sliced citron and candied orange in quarters; and a tablespoon of chopped.

RE-ORGANIZAT'N OF BERRY CREEK ADMINISTRATION

E. L. Gray, Chairman; O. S. Longman New Member of Administration Body

EDMONTON, Nov. 8.—The board of the Tilley East and Berry Creek areas has this week been reorganized to include Department of Agriculture representatives. Members of the board will now be O. S. Longman, Wm. Hewlett and E. L. Gray, as chairman. The board will in future confine its work primarily to formulating policies, and administration will be carried direct through regular Department of Agriculture representatives. Messrs. Hewlett and Helmer will be field men in charge of the respective territories mentioned, Melville Hat and Pollockville. The board in future will rely on active local committees in greater part of work. The board will possibly have one meeting in Hanna in the near future to meet Berry Creek committee men.

Leulovise (fruit sugar), one of the three sugars found in honey, is non-granulating and is usually the predominating one. The other two sugars are dextrose (grape sugar) and sucrose (cane sugar). Dextrose is a rapid granulating sugar. Sucrose is present in honey in very small quantities.

pep candied orange peel. To this quarter cup chopped nuts should be added, then the half cup of flour, and all mixed together.

The flour mixture is next prepared, a half tablespoon each of salt, soda, To two cups of all-purpose flour, add cinnamon, nutmeg, and allspice and two teaspoons of baking powder.

Lastly the wet mixture is assembled. Mix together half a cup each of chopped suet, molasses and milk, and two well-beaten eggs. Add the flour mixture and then the fruit mixture. Pour into greased molds, cover, and steam for three hours. Serve with any pudding sauce. This serves six or eight people. It is easy to double the recipe for the long-time cooking.

COAT HANGERS

Coat hangers may be bought with rubber discs on each end to prevent the garments from slipping off. Shaver garments with wide necks are particularly difficult to keep in place on coat hangers. Lacking the commercially prepared rubber ends, wrap a rubber band two or three times around the ends of the coat hanger and these will help to make the garment stay on the hanger.

BUYING CITRUS FRUIT

Oranges should be firm, smooth and thin skinned, free from scale decay and greening, and not wilted or flabby. Avoid split, mottled oranges and those with rough, protruding navels. Grapefruit should be juicy and not pithy. This is determined by the weight, the heavier the better. Avoid green color in grapefruit. It is better for lemons to be under ripe than over ripe. Fruit should not be bruised, broken or soft in spots.

VALIANT HEARTS

Oh land and sea, where lie our dead A cross we laid upon each head, And poppies blowing in the breeze, Oh, hear the whisper of the leaves,

These valiant hearts of yesterday, Heroic brave, now mingled lay, In yonder field, so far away, The poppies red, bright red today, I hear them whisper this and say

Those valiant hearts of yesterday, Oh peaceful star, your brilliance shines, The conflict long, has ceased to be, As there the poppies, scarlet, see, They bow their heads in sympathy, At set of sun I hear them say

A prayer, Thy will be done Oh valiant heart of yesterday, In glorious triumph peace returned And o'er their graves a mantle spread, A crimson stream all glowing red, The poppies on an earthly bed, I hear them whisper in the breeze, Ah These!

Their yesterdays, their yesterdays are gone, They sleep, they sleep till dawn.

Monday, Nov. 12, 1934—Clearing in most of central provinces; mild weather generally but turning colder in the northwest and on Pacific slope.

Tuesday, Nov. 13—Mild storm disturbance comes in from Pacific slope via southwest central regions, carrying light precipitation; colder west; mild in east.

Wednesday, Nov. 14—Disturbance, with light precipitation, reaches Great Lakes region, but remains unsettled and slightly colder in nearly all sections.

Thursday, Nov. 15—Unsettled weather, with considerable precipitation, continues in southwest and central regions; somewhat warmer in west but colder in east.

Friday, Nov. 16—Unsettled weather, with considerable precipitation, continues in southwest and central regions; somewhat warmer in west but colder in east.

Saturday, Nov. 17—Slow moving unsettled but fairly mild conditions covers most of country, but in west turns colder; in east slightly warmer and more precipitation.

Sunday, Nov. 18—Colder and clearer nearly everywhere, especially on Pacific slope and in the northwest; beginning of a short cold spell.

Monday, Nov. 19, 1934, in central provinces begins with weather considerably warmer than the seasonal normal and in southeast sections unsettled with some precipitation. The unsettled weather dwells several days and in southeast about the Great Lakes there should be more than normal precipitation. As week ends weather turns colder and clearer, especially about west, northwest and Pacific slope. Last days of week begin a cold spell that is expected to be of rather short duration. The only storm expected would reach the central provinces Nov. 14 or 15.

When a mild period of several days, with considerable precipitation, occurs here in mid November, as is expected this week, a rather sudden cold, clearing spell frequently follows, and in many sections unseasonably low temperatures are likely to be reached. In the basin of the South Saskatchewan the November mean daily maximum is below 41 degrees and as a consejoymont of good health sanitary surroundings? Do they direct them to become useful, responsible members of the larger social group? Do the schools finally so lead the people that they are able to devote their leisure to the uplifting of self and the community? If they do these things then they are fulfilling the modern conception of education; if they do not then we need revision.

At this time I will not go into particulars as to what changes I think should be made, but will indicate in general the trend that it should take. The school should not limit its activities to the four walls of the school house or to the covers of the text book. Every activity of the community should be reflected in its curriculum. We should eliminate everything that does not meet the test of useful purpose. We should introduce subject material adapted to the needs of the people, attain happy, healthful and remunerative life conditions; and finally we should all realize that we are integral parts in the building of a new system, that will depend for its shaping upon us. We should realize that the new system is for those that are coming after us.
